(36-38)

Little Mary wasn't like other octopuses. "Mary could never have her eighth leg unless(除非) a miracle(奇蹟) happens." the sea doctor said the day Mary was born(出生的).

For seven years, Mary's brothers and sisters kept laughing at her. "Mary doesn't have eight legs, so she isn't one of our family." Her sister, Olivia, told the other sea animals. When Mary's brother, Oscar, and his friends played on the playground, they did not let Mary join them. He said, "You can't ride on the seesaw with only seven legs." Another day Mary's little brother Orlando saw Mary playing alone and told her he found a treasure chest(寶物箱). "It is from a ship and much money is in it. But I'm not showing it to anyone, especially(特別是) not to a little octopus with only seven legs."

Mary hid(躲藏) in the deep of the ocean and cried sadly. Suddenly(突然地) a sea god showed up. "You are the kindest(最好的) octopus I have been waiting for. Only you can make three wishes." Mary said, "Let me think. First, I wish that Olivia was nice. Second, Oscar and Orlando could be kind. Lastly, I wish my parents could be healthy." "All your wishes can come true. And I can give you one more wish because you are the birthday girl!" the god said.

When Mary got home, her family was waiting for her. "Surprise!" they said all together.

"We bought you a pretty T-shirt as your gift!" Oscar and Orlando said.

"Thank you both. You're kind." Mary said.

"I baked a delicious cake for you, and I invited all of the sea animals to share it with us."

Mary said, "you are very nice, Olivia. Thank you for sharing."

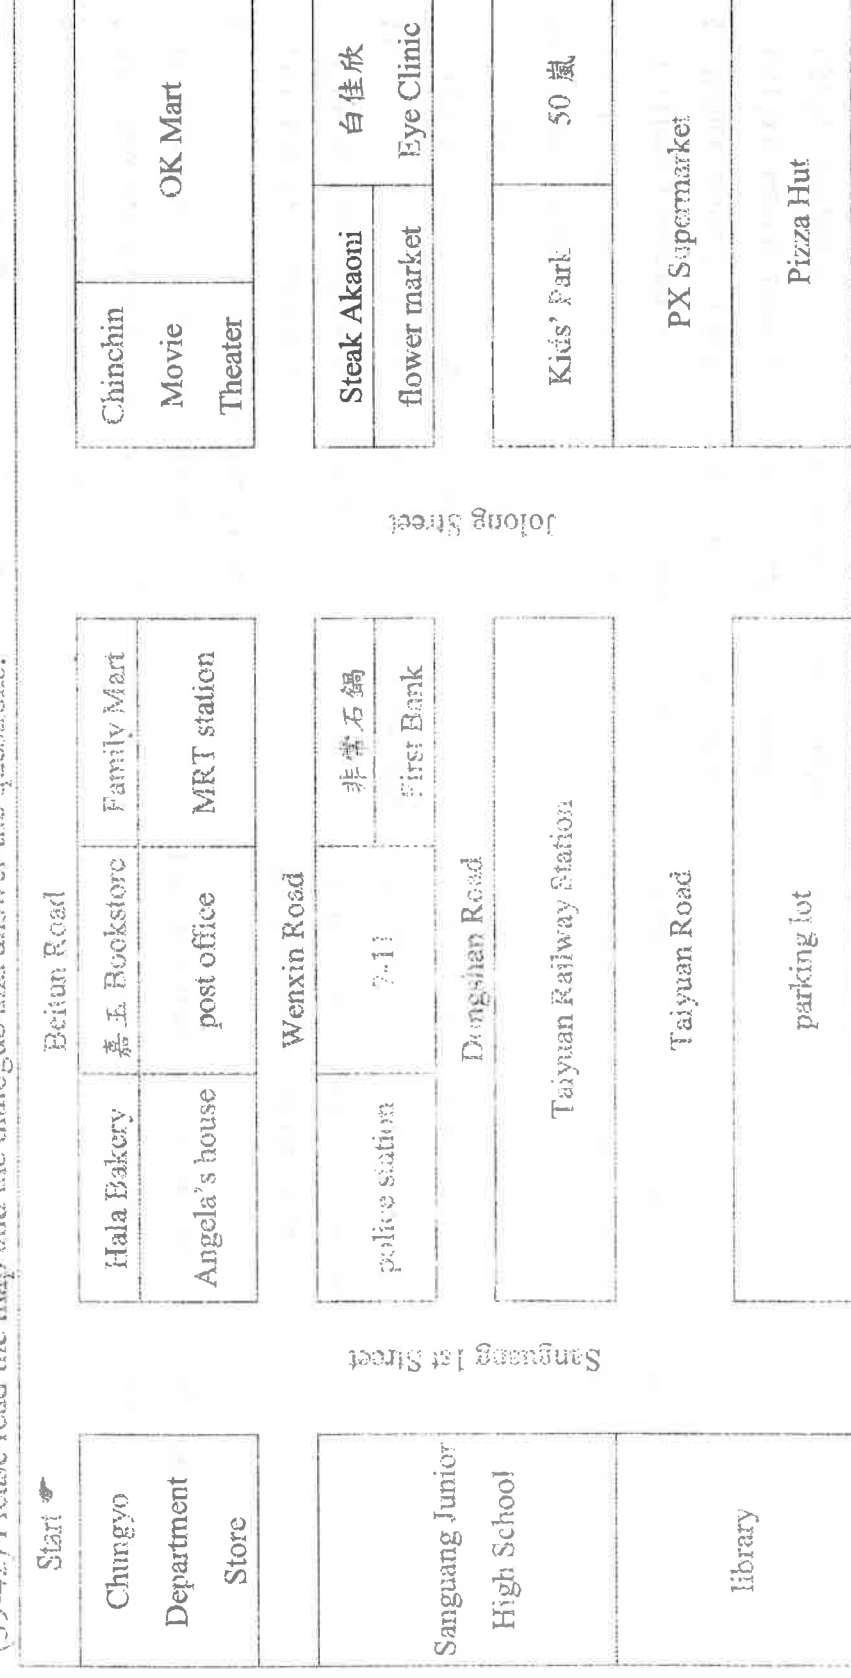

Mary's mother swam over to her daughter with a red birthday balloon. She tied the balloon to her daughter's new leg—the god gave her. "I'm so happy for you, Mary. Look, you finally have your eighth leg!"
