Spiders in Cambodia (柬埔寨)

Spiders are not liked by many people. People especially don't feel comfortable near large ones. It's hard not to notice them because their bodies are covered with thick hair. But in Cambodia, they are treated very differently. Sokha is a young boy from Cambodia. He isn't very tall. He's small for his age because he doesn't get enough meat to eat. His family raises geese, but they will only be served as food on special days. So, what does Sokha do when he wants to have some meat? He hunts for big spiders. To hunt for a spider, Sokha has to look for a spider's hiding hole first. When he finds a spider in a hole, he digs hard to make it come out. Sokha needs to be very careful because a spider bite hurts a lot. One time, he was bitten on the toe by a really large spider — it was almost 15 centimeters long. Sometimes Sokha is lucky and can collect more than ten spiders for his family in a day. After he brings them home, the spiders may be barbecued and then eaten with rice. For Sokha and his family, spiders aren't something scary. They are delicious food.
