Kevin hated school and was always looking for excuses not to go. If he sneezed, he asked his mother to write a note saying he had a cold. If he had a headache, he asked his mom to take him to the doctor during school hours. He spent more time at home than he did at school because he often looked for excuses to come home early.

One day, he came home from school in the middle of the morning. His father was surprised and said, "Is school closed today?" "No, Dad." Keven said. "It's open. I came home early." "How did you do that?" "What did you say to the teacher?" his father asked him. "I told her that I had a new baby brother and that I had to come home and help you." "But your mom has had twins, a boy and a girl. You've got a baby brother and a baby sister." his father said. "Yes, I know, Dad." Kevin said, "I'm saving up my baby sister for next week."
